"In my 17-year experience of owning and running a business, I have gained a broad understanding of much more than just technology; forming strategies that resolve issues around staff, customers, budgets, and targets to name only a few. While I boast a deep technical knowledge that enables a fair review process and reliant support, my skillset reaches much further. Always striving to develop, I am keen to absorb information which can, in turn, be shared with you.

I've proven that I am able to apply my learnings to businesses of various sizes and industries, to assist their processes and fuel their progression. Having successfully delivered Virtual IT Director services to businesses in many forms, I've yielded great results by playing a key part in getting projects off the ground and towards success and tackling problems that arise. Encouraging an outside-the-box mentality to problem-solving that prioritises saving time, resources, and money."

VIRTUAL IT DIRECTOR SERVICES

CHRIS CONNOR

"The guidance I can provide is based upon years of experience and the mistakes that I have learnt can save you from making those very same ones. With an ability to effectively deliver unwelcome news based on facts, reasoning, and solutions whilst being mindful of the audience and expectation, as well as challenging the board, I can offer a valuable external stance in your business and ensure you get the best from your team.

The role of providing IT director services can take many shapes. Whether you need a gap-filling presence short-term or a much more permanent solution, I offer flexibility and an open-mind, as well as offering suggestions on what I believe will fit the bill."

"Chris' presence has allowed me to dedicate my time more effectively in other areas of my business and having his input has really helped us move forward and improve the services we provide. He has supported us in a range of tasks, from staff resolutions to bringing new partners on board. As an online retailer, it has been essential having Chris on board to advise on IT infrastructure."
